DEATH OF GOV. BISSELL. - Our Eastern exchanges announce the death of the Hon. Clark Bissell, of Connecticut. Mr. B. was chosen Governor of Connecticut in 1847, and, we believe, for the next succeeding term. He was a Whig of the genuine His taste for public life, however, was not decided. The law was his first love. Whatever lanrels he won in the political arcna were acquired in intervals of relaxation from the pursuit of his favorite profession, in which he had no superior at one of the very ablest bars of New Lingland. During his gubernatorial service, he was at the head of the ale Law School, and its leading professor. No one ho ever attended his recitations will forget his singular presence, his strength and subtlety of mind, his vast legal stores, his delightful facility in imparting them, his quickness, his humor, his crouching, cautious, almost apish countenance, contrasting strangely with the robustness and sterling manliness of his character, and, above all, his shrinking modesty and his genial, overflowing conrtesy. He was a model law professor. We are sure there are many hundreds scattered throughout the Union, who, like the writer of this brief notice, preserve a vivid and most kindly recollection of his services in this capacity, and will cherish it always. Gov. lissell died at his residence in Norwalk, at the advanced age of seventy-five.

Souvenirs of Travel. By Madame Octavia Walton Le Vert. Two volumes. New York: S. II. Goetzel & Co.

The wonderful variety and charm of these volumes will richly repay the readers whom the fame of Madame Le Vert will attract. A higher tribute, we admit, could scarcely be paid to their merits, but it is strictly deserved. Rarely has any traveler brought home from "outre mer" so bright and delightful a store of memories. It is a perfect treasu ry of light and joy. Indeed, if we were disposed to find fault with the work, we should say that it was excessively amiable. Everybody and everythis appear in the brightest hues. It is a most exquise combination of lights, without a single shadow. The fair authoress evidently saw Europe couleur de rose. We are bound to add, however, that she displays marvellous skill in the use of her favorite tint, and that if the total effect is one of somewhat monotonous sweetness, it is owing rather to her instinctive omission of the unattractive than to any want of discrimination in representing the attractive. If it must be confessed that the picture is overburdened with beauty, it should be remembered that "out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh." The work will doubtless be perused with delight in every cultivated circle of the world.

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] THE RETURN. BY ANNA MARIA WELBY.

Thou wilt come to the home where we parted, The home of thy childhood, and mine, Where together, when young and light-hearted, We played 'neath the shade of the vine voice, from the open-door ringing, Shall thrill to thy heart with its tone. Nor step, o'er the green sward light springing, Shall hasten at sound of thine own

Though thou'lt dream not, the face of the stranger There smiles, where their faces have smil'd, That with kisses had welcom'd the ranger, And words of endearment—how wild! Yet thy feet, by the wicket shall falter, Thy hand, on the latchet delay, While thou'lt think, how the long years may alter The dear ones left smiling and gay.

And If, while the question propounding, Unknown ones should hasten to greet, The blood, from thy bosom quick bounding, Shall crimson the face that they meet; While thine eye, scarce the tear-drop repressing, Shall shrink from their glances away-Thy heart, in its bitterness, guessing, Whatst thou never couldst bear them to say,

For no hand, round thine own softly twining, Shall lead thee again to the board, Where, no more for the absent one pining, The wine for the welcome is poured.
Where with smiles now, her tear-drops out-glowing, The sister that wept for thee sore, Her white arms round thy neck throwing, Shall whisper "oh! leave us no more."

In vain by the threshold thou'lt linger, That sister's low laughter to hear. Or list for the lute her light finger So often hath touched for thine ear. Though the sweet songs of childhood still gladden The hearth, that hath echo'd our song, Every pulse of thy heart it will sadden Her dear voice to miss from the throng

I'or a moment thou'lt think thou art dreaming, Is this not the hirth-place before? The light, through its casements, soft gleaming That woke thee, a school-boy, of yore. And there still the alder-trees flinging Their shade o'er the pathway that wound To the gate by the sycamore swinging, Where a truant so oft thou wert found.

And still o'er the roof-tree are climbing The roses, unchanged, since the time When the winds, in thy boyhood, seemed rhyming Among them a musical chlme. And near, too, the seat in the arbor, The grape-vines above it to shade, That the wren and the linnet still harbon As when 'neath their foliage we played.

Thou'lt think, at a parent's feet kneeling, How oft there the prayer hath been said, While the stars, through the azure were stealing, Whose brightness now mocks thee o'erhead. And thou'lt wonder the blue sky above thee Hath changed uot, thou deem'st thee would dim, Where the dear ones had linger'd that loved thee, If it looked there no longer on them.

And then through thy dreams, perchance, breaking, As thou turnest to leave with a sigh, Some kind hand, thine own gently taking, To the lone spot may lead where they lie, And there, 'mid the wild tangled creepers, Thou'lt tell them—the loved—of thy woe; But they've done with earth's sorrow, the sleepers, Whose tears at thine anguish would flow.

The mother thy young heart that molded. Whose love, now immortal, hath blest; The green o'er the bosom light-folded. So oft that thy childhood hath prest. The father that looked on thee smiling. Whose youth seemed thine own to renew. The sister whose Innocent wiling Thy waywardness all could subdue

Ah, there to their shades, while appealing, The thought shall recur to the mind Of how much of thy youth and its feeling
Thou leftst when thou leftst them behind; When the cheerful farewell they'd have spoken, To lighten the gloom of thy heart, With sobs of wild anguish was broken As the moment drew near to depart.

Nor backward, that eve, through the gloaming Thy sien to the door-way retrace Though still, through the orchard trees Thy home's of another the place: And e'en were taey still there The dear ones the valley doth fold. When the youth of thy heart hath been blighted. It never could seem as of old.

Nor seek thee the few yet remaining, Whose feet from its pathway have rang'd, Whose hearts, unto thine though still leaning, The world hath alter'd-estranged; But go on thy way unreplning, The parted of long years-'tis vain' But up where you hlest orhs are shining

THE FAIR AT NEW ALBANY .- The exhibition of the Floyd County Agricultural Society opened yesterday in New Albany. It was attended by a large number of persons, and the utmost enthusiasm was manifested by those present in the great enterprises of art, agriculture, and mechanism, which it is de signed to foster. We learn from Mr. E. L. Huffman, who was in attendance, that the display of fruits was remarkably fine. The premium for neaches was awarded to Capt. Bragdon, his peaches veraging eleven inches in circumference. The fair is continued to-day, and if any of our citizens desire to see what our neighbors can produce and manufacture, they will be amply repaid by visiting the beautiful and hospitable city of New Al-

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

River news is just now a very scarce article Some little incidents occur occasionally, but they are generally so insignificant as to be unworthy of notice. The river is about at a stand here. It it so low that there is but little traveling on steamboats. The Jeffersonville and Ohio and Mississippi Railroads are doing nearly all the travel Eist, West, and South. The fare to Cairo and St. Louis is only $8 50 by railroad, and passengers reach St. Louis in 15 hours and Cairo in 21 hours. Trains leave three times a day-the 6 A. M. train goes to St. Louis via Indianapolis and to the Atlantic cities in 38 to 40 hours, and the 11 A. M. and 9 P. M. trains go to St. Louis, Cairo, and Cincinnati, via the Ohio and Mississippi Railroads.

The steamer Tempest, Capt. Parr, is a new and very light draught boat. She is advertised to leave for Cairo to-day, and the steamer Time is up for the Tennessee river. Both are at the city wharf.

The Moses McClellan is the mailboat for Cincinnati and the Emma Dean is the Carrollton packet.

Sheriff Hall and a posse of constables were at the wharf yesterday to serve a warrant on the steam-boat Diamond. She had escaped from the officers at New Albany, and Mr. Hall was telegraphed to stop her at this point. But she proved a trifle too sharp for the officers. She placed her Evansville freight and passengers in a tlatboat, which she landed in charge of a deck hand, and backed out, leaving her creditors lost in admiration at her shrewdness. We creditors lost in admiration at her shrewdness. We understand that the claim against the boat is very heavy, being a judgment obtained in one of the United States Circuit Courts for sinking a barge belonging to the steamer Ohio, which was loaded with valuable goods at the time of the accident, Evansville Journal, Sept. 22.

The above is incorrect. The facts in the case are simply these: Some time last winter the steamer Diamond, in landing at the wharf here, came in contact with a lighter in which the steamer Ohio had aischarged her freight, she drawing too much water to go through the canal. The underwriters refused to pay the loss on the goods sunk in the lighter, and the owners brought suit against them in the district court of New Orleans, and judgment was rendered for plaintiffs. The underwriters have now taken out an attachment against the Diamond for the value of the goods. This case has not been tried yet. The Diamond has been lying here all summer, but no sooner than business opens an attachment is taken out against her, and that by insumnce companies. Why did they not attach and bring suit against her here? It is a trick that none but a Dincinnati insurance company would be guilty of.

FASHIONABLE TAILORING .- Mr. M. B. Swain, on Jefferson street, adjoining the Mozart Hall, and opposite the Owen's Hotel, is one of the most accomplished and scientific tailors in the city. He is always posted up in the latest style, and cuts and fashions the clothes of his customes with remarkable accuracy and nicety. We have seen some re-cent specimens of the "fits" that he gives, and they are perfect in all respects.

Mr. Swain has a very choice and elegant supply of cloths and everything appertaining to a gentleman's wardrobe. His stock of winter vesting is especially fine, and worthy of the attention of the fashionables, while his prices are such as can but please all classes.

At the late term of the Johnson (Ind.) Circuit Court, the Rev. Mr. Roberts, a Baptist minister, sued a man named Brockmanfor slander, laying his damages at $5,000. The jury were unable to agree, some being for an acquittal d Brockman, some for a verdict of one cent damages and a few in favor of one hundred dollars damages. Brockman, it appeared in evidence, had only epeated the words of others, or the words of that old mischief-maker, "Madam Runnor," and had nude no charges against Roberts on his own responsibility.

All speak in the highest terms of the attention paid them, and the lumnanity displayed by the officers and crews of both brig and bark; the former, conveying the women, was about to serve out her last day's ration of water, and had not an opportune supply of provisions been received from a passing vessel, they must have been driven to great straights with hunger as well as thirst. Mr. Rynders, U. S. Marshal, is said to have received instructions to look out for and seize a steamer now fitting out at the port of New York for another fillibuster expedition under Gen. Walker.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal, in ne ticing the Vermont State fair, says:

We also noticed a very fine Sherman Morgan stallion, five years old, belonging to Mr. J. A. S. White of Northfield, which is certainly worthy of mention. This horse, however, was not entered for a premium, as he is about to be taken to Kentucky. He is some 15 hands high, of chestaut color, and is altogether a most promising horse.

We notice in the London News a new poem by Tupper. It is founded on the Indian atrocities, and is a cry for vengeance. It has neither poetry nor morality to recommend it.

LEBANON BRANCH RAILEOAD, -We met Major Spalding, the efficient president of this road, yesterday. He informed us that the road would be completed in twenty days.

ARRIVAL OF THE EMPIRE CITY—Report of the Purser.—The Empire City, Capt. John McGowan, left her wharf at Norfolk, Va., at 10½ A. M., on the 18th, for this port. She had been vietualled and coaled during the previous two days, for a thorough cruise in search of the missing steamer Central America, of whose ultimate safety, however, none on board felt any misgiving. But on the day of appointed departure, at 5 A. M., a pilot boat came up from outside, anchored in the stream near us, and we were soon boarded by a gentleman, one of four passengers, who electrified us with the announcement of the total loss of the Central America, foundered at sea at 8 P. M. on the evening of the 12th inst., during the late severe gale, carrying down with her most of her officers and crew, nearly 400 passengers, and $1,-800,000 in treasure.

Our informant had been picked up on the night of the disaster, thoating about on fragments of the wreck, with forty-eight others, by the Norwegian bark El.

Our informant had been picked up on the night of the disaster, thoating about on fragments of the wreck, with forty-eight others, by the Norwegian bark Ellen, Captain Johnson, from Belize, Honduras, bound to Falmouth, England, which he reported then coming up the bay, in tow of a small steamer.

It was likewise understood that all the women and children, some of the latter intants, in all tifty-six in number, had been saved in the steamer's boats, before she sunk, and put on board the brig Marine of Boston. "Sir," said our informant, "five hundred suen with death yawning before them at any moment, stood solid as a rock, nor made a movement for the boats until the women and children had been all safely transported to the brig, after which about forty of the crew and male passengers in a few trips reached the latter before the steamer went down."

Capt. M Gowan, abandoning his previous intention, immediately got his ship under weigh; steamed down the harbor, and when near the light-ship spoke the bark with her quota of the saved. Hailing her, he proffered a passage to New York to all who chose to accept. The majority were taken on board, and with a parting round of three hearty cheers for their preserves, we proceeded on our course, hoping to fall in with the brig an I relieve the woman and children. Within three nailes of Cane Henry, a versel was depreserves, we proceeded on our course, hoping to fall in with the brig an I relieve the woman and children. Within three miles of Cape Henry, a vested was described ahead in tow of a propeller, bound in, and innediately speculation was rife as to whether she might or might not prove to be the vessel we sought. Glasses were levelled at her by anxious groups gathered forward, and as we rapidly closed together certainty succeeded surmises, and to the joy of all she proved to be the brig Marine, in tow of the City of Norfolk propeller, her low and confined decks swarming with wretched looking objects, m ny of them women and children, wringing their hinds, and weeping and laughing by turns hysterically. Our boats were speedily lowered, and Capt. McGowan, in the first, boarded the brig in person, caressed, embraced, and, indeed, half strangled by the poor women, who threw themselves upon him as he reached the deck.

As boat load after boat load reached our ship's side and ladder, each vied with the other in assisting them to our decks, and in a short time the greater portion were confortably quartered in our cabins. To the bystanders the recognition and greeting be.

A writer in the Herald says:

The unfortunate, and yet fortunate women, wore an expression of the greatest sadness; it was not an obtrusive sorrow, but calm, deep, and pervading. Scarcely one of them had a cent of money, and pervading of the state of t Scarcely one of them had a cent of money, and none a change of clothes; they were just as they had got into the boat from the Central America, devoid of skirts, and wearing merely an outside dress. Some wept as they approached New York city, overcome with past memories and their unexpected condition. They had left California affluent in wealth and rich in the reciprocal enjoyment of affection; they arrived here devoid of treasure and overburdened with affliction. In lieu of their bright anticipations they find the severest suffering, and some the extremest penury. Not the least niteous some, the extremest penury. Not the least piteous was the sight of the infants. Some of them were perfectly naked, merely wrapped around by a coarse blanket taken from a berth.

Others were merely girt about the loins with linen, while others wore a fuller dress. Many of the mothers seemed quite unwell. Some were taking gruel, others were giving it to their babies. The deepest sadness pervaded all. A few could only speak with tears; others had power to check the outward semblance of their inward grlef. Some who had faced death in the hour of their peril with cheeks unblanched could not speak of the catastrophe and the loss of a loved one without tears. In looking at the condition of those saved from the unphe and the loss of a loved one without tears. In looking at the condition of those saved from the unfortunate ship, one could more fully realize the greatness of the calamity. All the passengers, male and female, spoke in the highest terms of their treatment on board the Empire City.

We are authorized by Mr. Wm. H. Webh, the huilder of the Central America, to say that he con-siders that ship to have been eminently seaworthy; siders that ship to have been eminently seaworthy; that she was huilt with great care and extraordinary strength, with the best fastenings, including diagonal iron braces, &c., and that her loss cannot be attributed to any defect in her construction. He is of the opinion that the disaster was indirectly oc casioned by the rupture of the steam-pipes, or some of her connections; and this view is further substantiated by the statement of Captain Badger, who describes the heat and steam in the hold as having been so great as to drive the coal-passers from their work—though the ship did not labor hard. Mr. M. O. Roberts states that he has no doubt the cause of the sinking of the steamer was some accident by which her feed-pipes or discharge-pipes were broken below the water.—N. Y. Jour. of Com.

The Probable Number Lost.—When the Central America arrived at Havana she reported at the office of the Captain General as follows:

Total.....Landed at Ilavana.... Leaving....Ilavana passengers, about..... Number missing.....

Mr. Joseph M. Bassford, a passenger on the Cenral America, makes the following full statement of the manner in which the passengers were taken from the steamer to brig Marine:

The first board that was lowered was at once stove. The first board that was lowered was at once stove. Better luck attended the lowering of the second boat. The boatswain and three of the crew were placed in charge of the beat, and it was soon filled with a portion of the lady passengers and children. A great deal of difficulty attended getting them into the boat during the heavy sea. The third boat that was lowered was in charge of the quartermaster and three oarsmen; this was likewise filled with women and children, and pushed off for the brig Marine. The tourth that was lowered met with the same fate with the first boat, and was knocked to pieces.

The fifth and last boat let down so as to reach the water and ride in safety. After all the remaining

Upon this expres-sion of doubt relative to himself, Ashby said: "I promise you, captain, most solemnly, that I will come back to the steamer and not desert her," or

I heard the remark distinctly, and noted it, as, the fact of the doubt as to the boat's return caused me to think that possibly the present would be the last opportunity to save myself; I saw that all the women were in, and would not allow myself any thought of my paragonal active till the refer to the

When Ashby got on board he drew a knife—1s he saw several on the point of making a jump for the boat—and declared that if any individual jumped on board that he would take his life. I had a knife, on board that he would take his life. I had a knife, too, at my command, and was not to be awed by any such threat. Knowing that the women and children were safe, I felt justified in making any effort for my own preservation, but the boat was cut loose, I gave a jump and landed in the boat. I had $2,000 in gold in a belt, and was about to tie it about me, but with the haste I had made to get into the hoat, thrust it into my side coat pocket. In giving the jump it was thrown in some way out of my pocket into the water and lost. when a young man named Adams, from Baltimore, dove head forcmost from the steamer and came up on the other side of the small boat. He put his leg over into the boat and got in so quickly and quietly that only one or two of those in the boat noticed it. Fifteen persons, including Ashby and the oarsmen, were in the small boat in which I had safely landed myself. The reason why more did not attempt to get into the small boat was because they felt themselves safer on the steamer. No one believed it possible that a small boat could live. As it was it was with the utmost difficulty and danger that the small boats carried their loads from the steamer to the brig. As the boat in which I was left the steamer Capt. Upon our boat load's arriving alongside the Marine and being taken on board, Ashby asked Captain Birch if he could not get his brig nearer the Central America. This, Capt. B. said, was impossible, owing to the disabled condition of his vessel and the heavy sea. By this time the brig had drifted about six miles from the steamer. Ashby asked the Capsix miles from the steamer. Ashby asked the Captain if he would not lower his small boat, but this, the Captain said, was in a condition unfit to be used. An offer was made by Ashby to Captain Birch of $500 if he would get his brig alongside of the Central America. The Captain repeated his statement tral America. The Captain repeated his statement that this was impossible in the condition his vessel then was. Ashby row promised $100 a man to those who would go back in his small boat. David Raymond, quartermaster, said he would go to the steamer if she was fifty miles away, and that he was above taking pay for such services. Four men went back in the boat. Ashby remained on the Marine, notwithstanding his pledge to Captain Herndon.

ANNUAL SESSION OF THE GRAND LODGE,-The annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of the United States commenced at Baltimore, on Monday. The Grand Sire and the Grand Secretary presented their annual reports. The receipts of the Grand Secretary for the fiscal year commencing Sept. 18, 1856, and ending Sept. 1, 1857, were $11,995 18.

The installation of the grand officers took place, viz: P. G. M. George W. Race, of Louisiana, M. W. Grand Sire, P. G. M. Timothy G. Senter, of New Hampshire, Deputy Grand Sire; P. G. M. Jas. L. Ridgely, of Maryland, Grand Corresponding and Recording Secretary; and P. G. Joshua Vansant, of Maryland, Grand Treasurer.

The Grand Sire nominated the following Grand officers, which were confirmed: P. G. Rev. J. D. Mc-Cabe, of Virginia, R. W. Grand Chaplain; P. G. A. M. Fonte, of Tonnessee, R. W. Grand Marshal; P. G. S. H. Lewyt, of Maryland, W. Grand Guardian; P. G. J. E. Chamberlain, of Maryland, W. Grand

The Order throughout the United States is generally in a presperous condition.

The Secretary of the Interior recently submitted to the Attorney General the question whether the practice heretofore prevailing in the l'ension Office of allowing the children of revolutionary soldiers to receive the pensions which their deceased parents might have received was according to law. The Attorney General rendered his opinion, declaring that the practice has no legal foundation, and that neither children nor grandchildren have any such right under the acts of Congress. The consequence of this will be to reverse a practice of the Pension Office which has continued for twentyfive years. The Attorney General gives the law, but declines to say whether the law should abolish the practice or the practice defeat the law, leaving that as an administration question to the Secretary himself. The opinion is an able one.

An unfortunate affray occurred at the house of Wm. Whalen in Harrison county on Friday last, between two men named David Morrison and Henry Whalen, in which the former was killed hy stabs inflicted by the latter with an ordinary pocketknife

Whalen immediately surrendered himself to the officers of the law, and, on examination of the case before Esquires Bryson and Whitaker, he was discharged-having acted strictly in self-de-

The Northampton Gazette says it has been discovered that a former clerk of the Senate in Massachneetts bas, in his rage to collect autographs, cut ont the names of the signers of important documents in the time of the revolution, and then wrote on the margin when and by whom the mntilation was dere. Numerous letters from Washington and his cotemporaries have been served in this way.

We see that the New York papers publish no less than three different statements from George E. Ashby, who was chief engineer of the steamer Central America. He attempts in all of them an exculpation of his conduct, and says that he was acting strictly in accordance with Captain Herndon's or-Thirteen well-filled cars reached New Haven last week, containing some 750 excursionists from Easthampton, Mass., nearly all of them concerned in the hutton and suspender factories at that place. They were waited upon hy the city authorities, and escorted about town hy the New Haven Brass Band.

A negro boy belonging to Mr. Ahram Baker, of Augusta, Ky., was badly hurt on Monday hy falling into a threshing machine with which he was engaged in the vicinity of that place. One of his legs was so hadly crushed that amputation was absolutely necessary.

GAS FROM PEAT -The first experiment on this continent of lighting a city with gas made from peat was successfully tried in Portland, on Monday last. The light was clear and brilliant, and few of the citizens were aware that coal was not used as

DESTRUCTIVE HAIL STORM .- A correspondent of the Richmond Despatch, writing from Fluvanna, September 10, says:

September 10, says:

A most destructive hail storm passed over portions of this county and Goochland yesterday evening, doing immense damage to the tobacco crop, besides blowing down many houses. I hear also of the loss of two negroes hy a planter of James river (Mr. Skipwith), who, in company with a good many more, sought refuge from the storm in a tohacco house, which was blown down. Two of the number were killed outright and several more crippled hy the falling timbers. The loss in this county is estithe falling timbers. The loss in this county is estimated at $25,000.

RUNAWAY SLAVES-FATAL AUFRAY.-The Maysville Eagle of Tuesday says:

Quite a stampede of negroes occurred on Sunday night last from the neighborhood of Washington in this county, and we are informed that as many as seventeen made their escape into Ohio. They were immediately pursued by a party made up on both sides of the river, and, on an attempt being made to capture one of the negroes belonging to Mr. Wm. Nelson, he made battle and cut and dangerously wounded two men mamed Pose Waldron and Wm. P. Dare. The negro was finally overcome hy the party and brought hack to this side of the river, where he is now safe in jail, hut the two wounded men are said to be in a very critical situation and doubts are expressed whether either of them can recover. The halance of the negroes are yet at large.

WHAT THEY EAT AT KEY WEST .- Key West What they Eat at Key West.—Key West Island is about the size of the new Great Eastern steamer, but more thinly populated. The means of supporting human life on the island may be guessed at from the following series of conundrums propounded by the ship steward, to "an important personage" in the crowd on shore: Steward—"Have you got any beef?" Ans.—"No!" "Eggs?" "No!" "Milk?" "No!" "Any chickens ashore?" "No!" "Veal?" "No!" "Muttor?" "No!" Steward, (in despair and a clean shirt)—"have you got auything to eat on the island?" "Oh, yes, turtle—lots of it." So sundry green turtles were hrought on board, and for island?" "Oh, yes, turtle—lots of it." So sundry green turtles were hrought on board, and for three days we have been turtleized in every conceivable form in which turtle has ever been cooked and what new forms the ceivable form in which turtle has ever been cooked, and what new forms the imagination of the cook could invent. The dinner bills of fare discourses somewhat in this style: sone, turtle; fish, turtle; boiled turtle; roast turtle; side dishes, turtle steak, turtle pares, turtle augratin, stewed turtle, turtle on the half shell, &c.; game, turtle doves (alluding, so doubt, to ene that dove overboard), and so on, including turtle at discretion (and a slight discount). Sometimes, I hear, the inhabitants of Key West get a little beef from Tampa Bay, but not often, turtle being the standby, and the people politically hard-shells.

THE RESTORED .- A Washington dispatch says: The naval officers assume from certain indications that sixteen dropped officers have been restored by nnpnblished decisions of the President npon the reports of the Naval Courts."

[From the Correspondence of the Newark Avertiser.] A PAPAL PROGRESS IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.—The six days' ado with the Pope terminates this morning in surpassing stir. Oddly enough, he goes with a heartier welcome than he came. The arsenals and helfries fairly stan the ear with their joy. Curious multitudes certainly crowded to the sumptuous municipal reception this day week, but they made no sign, not even the common civility of lifting the hat. The windows along the 'sacred way' hung out the usual festal draperies with gandy lifting the hat. The windows along the "sacred way" hung out the usual festal draperies with gandy look, and here and there a solitary might have heen seen kneeling in the stubbora crowd, but an ominons calm prevailed throughout. Even the waiting thirty thousand in the piazzi Pitti stood their ground thirty thousand in the plazzi Pitti stood their ground as the imposing cortege entered, and then received the apostolic benediction from the purple balcony without uncovering, though the liveried guards fell to the knee, as in duty bound. So throughout all the courtly shows of the week, the people, halancing between a certain sentiment of respect for the Head of their Church and a deep disgust with his political complications, looked on in respectful silence. There has not been the slightest show of popular feeling. The prescribed illumination was brilliant, particularly that part of it mirrored in the flowing Arno, but the Pontifical procession passed through the streets without a cheer.

Nevertheless, the personal bearing of the man, a rarely-featured, courteous gentleman, like St. Paul, none the less a courtier for being a saint—his remarkable assiduity in husiness, his patient endurance, for every hour of every day, from sunrise to bed-time, has been strenuously occupied with the appointed series of receptions and fetes, visitations and ceremonies—have wonderfully served to conciliate personal regard. Men seem loth to believe that a portly gentleman, so apparently unused to the meaner arts of the priesthood, with a brow not born to shame, a throne where honor might he crowned, can be the mere velvet catspaw, of legitimaey, and charitably hope that the most corrupting post in a disparaged profession has not wholly depraved the generous qualities of Pio None. Such was the effect of his appearance in the magnificent old City Hall, at the performance of a grand original Oratorio hy six hundred trained voices and instruments, on Thursday performance of a grand original Oratorio hysix nun-dred trained voices and instruments, on Thursday morning. The august assemblage, twelve hundred of the noblesse and gentry, rose as he entered at the head of his suite, invested in a simple white kersey-mere cassock, and proceeded bowing with infinite dignity and grace through the long avenue to the purple throne. But it should he remarked that this sort of homage is mostly confined to the polite and easier classes, who have also been profuse in richer offerings. It was pleasantly remarked the other evening in a diplomatic circle, in reference to the presents constantly flowing in upon him, that he is the richest of the whole line of pontiffs. As chief Almoner of the church, he has received enormous sums during the present tour, the first of his Pontificate. The Duke of Modena, probably the richest sovereign in Duke of Modeua, probably the richest sovereign in Europe, though one of the smallest, for example, gave him $100,000 after a mass in his cathedral. At Bologua he received various donations in sums At Bologua he received various contained in sums from ten to sixty thousand dollars; and the Grand Duke of Tuscany placed $20,000 at his disposul after the consecration of the Archbishop on Sunday. Among numerous pri-vate gifts received here is a gold crucifix, glittering with precious stones, valued at $63,000, from the Russian Prince Demidoff, the repudiated hushand of the Princess Matilde of Paris, who has the most sumptuous palace in Italy.

ARREST OF PLIN WHITE—$47,000 INVOLVED.—Plin White, who figured some years ago as a defendant in a false pretence case involving a very large amount of money, and the pecuniary ruin of two gentlemen, was on Monday arrested by Sergeant S. J. Smith, of the Jefferson Market Police Court, charged with laving, by false and fraudulent pretences, cheated the firm of H. S. & J. Il. Stevens, brokers in Broadway, out of the sum of $47,000. It appears from the affidavit of Mr. James H. Stevens, one of the firm, now on file in the Jefferson Market Police Court, that White called upon them, and asked the loan of $50,000 for the purpose of huving out an extensive jewelry establishment. He stated that he was himself worth $500,000—one-half of which was invested in several valuable farms in ARREST OF PLIN WHITE-$47,000 INVOLVED. of which was invested in several valuable farms in Vermont, and $100,000 in a certified check on the Suffolk Bank at Boston, held by his brother, then in Boston. He added, further, that Mr. Jas. B. On the arrest of White, he was taken before Justice Flandreau, and held to hail in $7,000 to answer.

The Wind AlMulloian.—The wind is a musician at birth. We extend a silken thread in the crevice of a window, and the wind finds it and sighs over it, and goes up and down the scale upon it, and poor Paginini must go somewhere else for his honor, for lot the wind is performing with a single string!

It tries almost everything upon earth to see if there is music in it; persuades a tone out of the great hell in the tower, when the sexton is at home

And what a melody it sings when it gives a concert with a full choir of the waves of the sea, and performs an anthem between the two worlds, that goes up, perhaps, to the stars that love music most and sang it the first.

Then how fondly it haunts old houses; moaning under the eaves, sighing in the halls, opening old doors without fingers, and singing a measure of some sad old song, around the fireless and deserted hearth.—B. F. Taylor.

STRONG MINDED WOMEN .- Nancy Pitcher, Phebe arney, Rosetta H. Kerr, and certain other ladies and gentlemen of Eric county, N. Y., have is ned a circular calling a convention of the friends of human progress for the 24th, 25th, and 26th instant. Nancy Pitcher and her associates state that their object is "to gain a true knowledge of the nature and attributes of man; his duty in the present and his destiny in the future."

LEGAL PRESUMPTIONS OF GUILT.—The case of Miss Lavinia E. Carrolleua, which was tried Thursday in the Munici; al Court, was a very remarkable one—remarkable no less for the appearance of the defendant than for her fortunate escape from the fatal grasp of circumstantial evidence which had been accumulated upon her. The charge against her was larceny of a little money and a few clothes from her room-mate.

Young, not over 20, good looking, but rather lady-like that beautiful, unprotected and alone, she rose in the prisoner's dock and undertook her own defense. She examined and cross-examined the witnesses with almost professional astuteness; and at the close she herself turned to the jury and addressed them. dressed them.

The government had the usual evidence arrayed The government had the usual evidence arrayed against her, of the stolen property being found in her trunk or possession. With a sweet and plaintive voice, she related to the jurymen the story of her life; how she had wandered here with her lover from the distant State of South Carolina, under a solemn pledge of marriage; how he had left her, and that, deceived into boarding in a place whose character she was too late horrlied at, she had incurred the dislike of a girl with whom she roomed: curred the dislike of a girl with whom she roomed; and all that she knew more about it was, that in her open bag these stolen things were found. But of this alleged theft she called upon her God to witthis alleged theft she called upon her God to witness she was entirely innocent. Her pure appearance, standing in the dock among the horrid gang of sinners blistered with inveterate vices, was like a youthful angel in purgatory. Her words were not backed up by evidence; from the nature of the case they could not be; hut the confirmation of their veracity, strong as holy writ, spoke from her gentle eyes, her placid face, and her pure demeanor; these vere a shining witness for her, and opened her prison doors.

While she spoke, that vulgar court-room, where so much that is infernal passes in daily procession, seemed attentive as to strange and unaccustomed music. The District Attorney (Cooley), with a warm-hearted candor, declined to urge the jury to convict her. The Judge (Nelson) charged them fully, but with great feeling. There were tears in his voice if not in his eyes, as he did so; and when at the conclusion the jury promptly acquitted the maiden, the whole audience, the villains in the dock, the ministers of justice in the bar, the spectators connected with the criminals—all and were assembled seemed to feel the sympathy of denizens of Pandemouium for the escape of a spirit of and upper air to its congenial sunshine.

The remarkableness of this case is still more noticeable from the escape of the victim. Many a youth is now serving out a House of Correction sentence on evidence not a particle stronger than this was. An indictment once found by a Suffolk grand jury against a friendless human being is almost deadly. The petit juries follow the District Attorney and the grand juries; and over the head of those who enter their precincts (unless they are rich) the motto of the Inferno flashes out—"all hope abaudon ve wheener here."

rich) the motto of the Inferno flashes out—"all hope abandon, ye who enter here."

The presumption of law is, that the person in whose possession stolen goods are found is prima facie guilty, and must then prove his own innocence. So in homicide, if the Government prove the killing, the defendant must himself prove he did it in self-defence. Inhoth cases the "burden of proof" is laid upon him. practically defeating the henign maxim of the common law, that "every man is presumed innocent til proved guilty." In the case of this poor girl, how could she prove her innocence? She saw no fatal finger thrust the stolen goods into her accusing trun; if she had stolen them she could not have heen allowed to testify to it, for a defendant cannot testify. So Celt was condemned in New York for the mirder of Adams, when the whole community helived him guilty of a suddeu, unpremeditated killing in the heat of rage. But the government and the hill in the last heat that the the total from community helived him guilty of a suddeu, unpre-meditated killing in the heat of rage. But the gov-ernment proved the killing hy him, and that took from him his common law presumption of innocence, threw upon him the hurden of proving that he struck the blow in anger; this he had no means Substantially the same principle was involved in the Peter York case, the negro, whom Richard D. Dana unsuccessfully (efended under the rulings of the Chief Justice, but whose sentence was commuted by the Governor; and very similar though not identical was the capital point in Prof. Webster's identical was the capital point in Prof. Webster's famous conviction.

In some cases, subsantial justice is attained by this technicality of the law, hut quite as often, we fear, positive and grierous wrong is done. Suppose this poor girl in questin had not heen blessed with an appearance and address so preposessing, or had not heen so calm andself-assured; suppose she had abandoned herself to grief and tears as she saw the frightful me hes of this "circumstance" of the law crushing away from his her legal presumption of innocence, she would to day have been in a felon's cell, hopelessly demonlized. We have hefore this heard the agonizing shrieks of unfortunates conheard the agonizing shrieks of unfortunates con-demned, echoing thrugh those vaulted chambers; prisoners who protestet and swore to their innocence; and against whom nothing but such prima facie circumstances had been presented. In the practical administration of our Massachusetts law there is some alleviation of the wrong which is risked by this severe technicality of the law, in the discretion of the Judges in considering any indications of "good character" which may appear. But society should look to its criminals, and to its criminal law. Boston Traveler.

A REGULAR JACK SHEPPARD. — An intensely laughable robbery was perpetrated at the Jarrett House, St. Anthony, on Thursday uight, which in boldness eclipses any similar enterprise of modern times. Col. II. Wiltse, hearing somebody knocking around in the hall near his room, at an unreasonable hour, and, suspecting it might he some villain who meant to rob him, rose from his bed, fixed the door of his room open, got his brace of pistols and prepared them for "an emergency," then sat down on the bed to await for the anticipated scamp to present himself. In this position he fell askeep—and, while enjoying a perpendicular dream (probably of a robber, writhing with a bullet in his thorax), the ungrateful and icconsiderate vagaboud aforesaid walked into the room through the open door, helped himself to a new dress-coat, two pair of pantaloons, and a vest, pocketed six dollars and fifty cents in money, deliberately became an accomplice of Procrastinatiou (the thief of time) by stealing a valuable gold watch, took the gold studs out of the shirt of the slumberer, and reluctantly departed! Mr. W. awoke just in time to find his "vicini" vamosed, and himself minus property to the amount of $200 or $300. In fact, almost everything in the room had "gone off" except his faithful pistols, which were firmly grasped in either hand ready capped and cocked! He was found at the house of Dr. Isaac II. Scott, about half a mile from the New River White Sulphur Springs, in Giles county. While arresting him, several things occurred to excite a suspicion against Dr. Scott himself, who was immediately taken into custody by the officers, and search made, when a large amount of newly made half dollars in an unfinished state, with the dies, moulds, electric hattery for plating, and several letters from honses in New York and Philadelphia, from which they had purchased conner and tiu, were found.

honses in New York and Philadelphia, from which they had purchased copper and tiu, were found.

Dr. Scott, wife, and two daughters, one of whom was to have heen married to Poif, on the day of his arrest, were committed to Giles county jail, to await their trial. Poff is indicted for passing counterfeit halves. He formerly lived in Christiansburg, but now resides in Newport, Giles county. Several other persons in the neighborhood of Dr. Scott are suspected, and we hope that some clue may now be had to the counterfeits that have been so plentiful in Giles. The New York correspondent, who furnished the dies, moulds, &c., with directions for their use, writes under a fictitious character.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL—NO. 3.

We desire to keen the fact before the public that the Monadelphian Society is a business corporation, whose capital stock is to be vested in industrial pursuits of a lucrative character, in which every stock-holder is a joint owner, that the profits arising from the sale of the manufactured products are to be ap-plied to sustaining and supporting an Asylum Home and School for neglected and unprovided for chil-

In our last communication, we gave the general details of the plan of industrial operations, the arrangements for agricultural labor, with its associate branches, and of the mechanical branches necessary to supply the demands of the farm and home, pre-paratory to the admission of the family of children for whose benefit the charter was granted; and the Society has undertaken the parental care it providing for them a home, in which they will be fed, clothed, housed, governed, and disciplined in moral and industrious habits; a school in which they will receive literary, scientific, and moral instruction, and a work-shop for acquiring the practical and handicraft knowledge of such occupation as they are adapted for by gendus and capacity.

In the industrial operations each branch is made separate and distinct from every other, having its own special duties and responsibilities; as much so as if there was no other branch carried on, or as though it was carried on by another person or body not connected with the enterprise, but striving within itself to acquire the largest amount of profits; in itself to acquire the largest amount of profits; all, however, sharing in common the benefits of the home, which is, itself, a separate and distinct branch home, which is, itself, a separate and distinct branch of industry, with its duties and responsibilities. We now come to the details of the family, with its duties, responsibilities, and demands. In the details already given arrangements have been made for housing and feeding the family, at the family hotel or home. It now becomes necessary to provide clothing of every description, and this creates the demand for additional branches of industry, including the maunfacture of these articles, each of these branches to be conducted as separate from all others and having its own duties and responall others and having its own duties and responall others and having its own duties and responsibilities.

We wish to fix the fact upon the mind of the reader that none of the industrial pursuits are common to the school, but that they are separate business occupatious, carried on expressly for the purpose of making money to defray the general expense and only secondarily affording opportunity to the children to enter for so many hours each working day, and labor under instructions just as ty to the children to enter for so many hours each working day, and labo, under instructions just as if a boy from the common school was to go every day into a neighboring workshop and work so many hours, the head workman kindly giving him instruction instructions.

The stockholders appropriate the amount of each subscription, to be held in perpetuity, for the purpose of carrying on such manufactures as will be most remunerative to produce a fund to be used for providing parental care in supplying the natural and educational wants of unprovided-for children, through the instrumentality of the home, the school, and the workshop, the great sustaining powers of society and the theater of all individual and national greatness.

llaving provided for the boarding and clothing of llaving provided for the boarding and ciothing of the family of children, we must now look to their government and instruction, for the children have no more to do with the conducting of the home, only so far as they may be receiving instruction in and learning the handicraft of the industrial branches carried on in it, than have boarders in a hotel. The home is the place where a person or a family resides: the Monadeiphians provide a home, at which the family of unprovided-for children reside for a specified length of time, subject to the rules and regulations of that home, and assuming the responsibilities and obligations thus imposed. The home is a separate business concern, provided for the accommodation of all and the protection and children and childr tion of all and the protection and education of the family of children.

The government of a family of children requires a controlling head, discharging the duties and per-forming the obligations of tather and mother. In a large family the elder brothers and sisters assist the parents in the discharge of these duties and the performance of these obligations.

We place then a male and female representing the We place then a male and female representing the parental head over the government and instruction, for we consider the domestic circle the true school, of this Monadelphian family. We then classify the children according to age, disposition, capacity, and pursuit, into groups or classes of ten or twelve, and place over each class a governor or teacher representing an elder brother or sister, who is to be their constant attendant, day and night, their teacher in word and deed, and their companion and associate wherever they be, all being accountable and subwherever they be, all being accountable and sub-ject to the parental authority. Thus the family is made a separate industrial branch with its own ac-countabilities and responsibilities, whose business is to grow up the children to be perfect, moral, intel education can make them perfect. Can society do for itself betler work than this?

THIRTY-SEVEN POISONED—Six Dead—Terrible Retribution.—One of our subscribers, from Pike county, informed us vesterday of a most horrible and atrocious case of poisoning in that county, just below the line of Montgomery, and in the neighbor-bood of Bruceville. The annals of crime will hardly show a more extensive and diabelical piece o

It seems that a German or Hungarian, whose name our informant had forgotten, was on intimate terms with a negro woman, the property of old Thomas Frazell, one of the earliest settlers of Pike. This man had once been in the employ of Mr. F., and was familiar with his premises. Some time since he had been detected in gambling with Mr. F.'s negroes, and Mr. F. had instituted a prosecution against him. On Saturday evening, the 12th inst., he was seen in conversation with the negro woman above alluded to at the well although be had reabove alluded to, at the well, although he had re ceived orders from Mr. Frazell never to come about

On Sunday there were some thirty-seven persons dining at Mr. Frazell's house, of whom about thirty were visitors from the neighborhood. All these became sick soon after eating, vomiting violently; and the cook being arrested immediately, on a suspicion of poisoning, at once proceeded to state as follows: She said that the white man above referred to, while at the well, had given her a vial containing arsenic, which he instructed her to mingle with "the meal, the milk, the butter, and the coffee." He was particularly desirous that it should go into every article of food, because old Mr. Frazell was in delicate health, and generally ate very sparingly. The negro woman said she followed the directions of her lover to the letter—who, by the way, added to his instructions the remark that, "after the old man had taken that, he would hardly prosecute him in that case." On Sunday there were some thirty-seven person

The poison was administered, as we have seen, but teo successfully. The whole assemblage of persons were put under its influence, and at the last accounts six had died from its effects. Old Mr. Frazell died about sunset of Sunday, the day of the poisoning. His overseer's wife and two children, Mrs. Cloud, a widowed daughter of Mr. F., and Mr. F.'s granddaughter died the next day. Several others were lying in a critical condition, and noubtless there will be more victims of this awfully fiendish crime. him in that case.'

Mr. Jack Frazell, son of the old man, happened to be out of meal on the day of the poisoning, and sent to his father's and borrowed a bushel. Alt who partook of this, including a brother who had declined to eat at his father's—having come in after some of the company had got sick—were more or less affected.

After we had written the above, our informant, Mr. J. M. Johnson, of Pike, called on us again and gave us the name of the poisoner, which is Comiska. Mr. J. further states that the infuriated people of the poisoner, woman and portionment which excludes the decided and the meighborhood have burnt the negro woman, and tempts to exculpate himself from plame by declaring "that only four days rema ned, after he arrived in the Territory, to make apportionment. In the mean time he is safely lodged in jail at Troy. He neither denies nor admits anything.—Montgomery (Ala.) Mail, 17th. DAILY REVIEW OF THE MARKET, says:

Letters from Philadelphia this morning advise several additional mercanille failures in that city on Saturday, among others the old established domestic commission house of Hacker, Lea, & Co.

We learn from the Milwankie papers that the Rock River Bank, of Beloit, closed its doors on Monday, having made an assignment protecting its depositors, and the bills are fully secured by good stocks, and worth their face.

The circulating notes of the Yates County Isank of this State (one of the safety fund charters not yet run out), were refused redemption at the agency of the Bank in Albany, on Saturday. Mr. Gloctt, of the Mechanics' & Farmers' Isank of Albany, who is the redeeming agent, writes on Saturday alternoon to the correspondent in this city, that he has confidence in the good faith and integrity of the managers and principal owners of the bank, Judge Oilver, of Yates county, but that his notes came in too last for his present means of payment at Albany.
